

A. PANEL MEMBER BIOGRAPHIES

---

Chair

Mary Lou Leary

Executive Director
National Center for Victims of Crime

Mary Lou Leary is executive director of the National Center for Victims of Crime, the nation's leading resource and advocacy organization for crime victims. Ms. Leary joined the National Center for Victims of Crime in December 2004 after more than 20 years in the criminal justice field.

Previously, Ms. Leary served as the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia and as Acting Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Justice Programs. While at the U.S. Department of Justice, Ms. Leary also served as Deputy Associate Attorney General and Chief of Staff for the Office of the Associate Attorney General, and as Acting Director of the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services, where she worked to raise awareness of victims' issues among law enforcement officers.

Ms. Leary has served the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia as Principal Assistant U.S. Attorney, Executive Assistant U.S. Attorney for Operations, Chief of the Superior Court Division, and Deputy Chief of the Misdemeanor Trial Section. She also oversaw the Victim Witness Assistance Unit in that office—the largest federal program of its kind—and helped establish the Domestic Violence Prosecution Unit with specially trained prosecutors and advocates. Ms. Leary's career includes extensive trial and grand jury experience as an Assistant United States Attorney and as an Assistant District Attorney for the Office of the District Attorney, Middlesex County, Massachusetts.

Ms. Leary received her law degree from Northeastern University School of Law and an MS in education from Ohio State University.

Members

Angela Arboleda

Associate Director of Criminal Justice Policy
National Council of La Raza

Angela Arboleda is associate director for Criminal Justice Policy at the National Council of La Raza (NCLR)—the largest national Hispanic civil rights and advocacy organization in the United States. Ms. Arboleda is responsible for civil rights and criminal justice policy analysis, advocacy activities, and research affecting Latinos in the United States. In that capacity, Ms. Arboleda focuses on issues including juvenile justice, hate crimes, racial profiling, sentencing reform and reentry issues, police brutality, and civil rights discrimination by state, local, and federal law enforcement. Ms. Arboldea authored Lost Opportunities: The Reality of Latinos in the U.S. Criminal Justice System—the first book to focus on Latinos in the justice system.

Prior to her position at NCLR, Ms. Arboldea worked at the National Organization for Women, the Feminist Majority Foundation, and the Service Employees International Union, where she was lead organizer for political and corporate campaigns, ballot initiatives, and political rallies.

Ms. Arboldea is a graduate of the Elliot School of International Affairs at The George Washington University.

Edward F. Davis, III

Commissioner

Boston Police Department

Edward F. Davis, III, Police Commissioner in Boston and a 28-year veteran of the Lowell, Massachusetts, Police Department, rose through the ranks holding a variety of positions including Captain in charge of Community Policing and Commander of a combined Federal, State, and Local Narcotics and Organized Crime Unit. He was appointed Superintendent of Police in 1994, with responsibility for providing police services to the fourth largest city in the state.

Commissioner Davis is the treasurer of the Police Executive Research Forum in Washington, DC, and a founding member and current president of the Massachusetts Major City Chiefs Association.

He was the recipient of the prestigious National Institute of Justice Pickett Fellowship and attended the John F. Kennedy School of Government's Program for Senior Government Executives at Harvard University. Commissioner Davis holds an MS in criminal justice from Anna Maria College.

Bill Geller

Director

Geller & Associates

Bill Geller, director of Geller & Associates Consulting, reports on and provides technical assistance and training to support humane and effective policing and community action for safer, stronger communities. Over nearly 30 years, he has worked with many police departments, community groups, the U.S. Justice Department, local and state governments, civil rights organizations, and the news media, and has authored a number of books on police leadership and decision making.

Mr. Geller's consulting focuses on managing police use of force and related community conflict; fostering police integrity; helping police agencies to become "learning organizations" and to avoid such decision-making problems as "groupthink;" and building and strengthening diverse police–community partnerships for public safety. He is the co-founder of and principal public safety consultant to the Local Initiatives Support Corporation's Community Safety Initiative, which promotes community revitalization and public safety through projects in a number of American cities.

Prior posts include executive director and research director of the Chicago Law Enforcement Study Group; project director for the American Bar Foundation; special counsel for public safety and internal security to the Chicago Park District in the administration of Chicago Mayor Harold Washington; associate director of the Police Executive Research Forum; law clerk to Justice Walter V. Schaefer of the Illinois Supreme Court; and search manager in the White House Office of Presidential Personnel.

Mr. Geller holds a law degree from the University of Chicago and was awarded the city of Chicago's Richard J. Daley Police Medal of Honor and commendations from the New York City police commissioner and the St. Louis police chief.

Tracey L. Meares

Professor of Law
Yale University

A professor at Yale Law School, Tracey L. Meares was Max Pam Professor of Law and Director of the Center for Studies in Criminal Justice at the University of Chicago before joining Yale in January of 2007. Professor Meares's teaching and research interests center on criminal procedure and criminal law policy, with a particular emphasis on empirical investigation of these subjects. Her work focuses on crime prevention through the application of a civil society approach to law enforcement that builds upon the interaction among law, culture, social norms, and social organization. She has written numerous articles on these topics, and has worked with local, state, and federal officials to implement crime-reducing and legitimacy-enhancing policies.

In addition to her appointment at Yale, Professor Meares is a senior research fellow at the American Bar Foundation. She is an associate editor of the journal Law and Social Inquiry, and she serves on the editorial board of several academic journals. Professor Meares currently serves on the National Research Council's Committee on Law and Justice.

Professor Meares received her law degree from the University of Chicago.

Ari Schwartz

Deputy Director
Center for Democracy and Technology

Ari Schwartz is the deputy director of the Center for Democracy and Technology (CDT). Mr. Schwartz's work focuses on increasing individual control over personal and public information. He promotes privacy protections in the digital age and expanding access to government information and services via the Internet. Mr. Schwartz regularly testifies before Congress and executive branch agencies on these issues.

In 2006, Mr. Schwartz won the RSA Security Award for Excellence in Public Policy for work in cybersecurity. In 2003, Mr. Schwartz was the only public interest awardee of Federal Computer Week's "Federal 100 Awards"—for individuals from government, industry, and academia who had the greatest impact on government information systems—for his work on the E-Government Act of 2002.

Prior to working at CDT, Mr. Schwartz worked at OMB Watch, researching and analyzing the nonprofit sector's engagement in technology, government performance, access to government information, and government information technology policy.

Wesley G. Skogan

Professor

Institute for Policy Research, Northwestern University

Wesley G. Skogan has been a faculty member at Northwestern University since 1971, and holds joint appointments with the Political Science Department and the University's Institute for Policy Research. He has authored a number of books focusing on: the interface between the public and the legal system in crime prevention and community policing; neighborhood and community responses to crime; and criminal victimization and evaluating service programs for victims. His 1990 book, Disorder and Decline, examining public involvement in community policing programs, was awarded an American Sociological Association prize.

Professor Skogan has been a visiting scholar at the Max-Planck-Institut (Freiburg), the Dutch Ministry of Justice (WODC), the University of Alberta, and Johns Hopkins University. He spent two years as a visiting Fellow at the National Institute of Justice; served as a consultant to the British Home Office, developing and analyzing the biannual British Crime Survey; and has twice testified before Congressional committees on crime-related issues. Professor Skogan has served on the editorial boards of several academic journals and is a Fellow of the American Society of Criminology, a member of the Scientific Committee of the International Society of Criminology, and a Senior Fellow of the Open Society Institute. From 1999-2004, he chaired the National Research Council's Committee on Research on Police Policies and Practices, and was a member of the NRC's Committee on Law and Justice.

Christopher Stone

Guggenheim Professor of the Practice of Criminal Justice

Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University

Christopher Stone is the Daniel and Florence Guggenheim Professor of the Practice of Criminal Justice at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government where he teaches courses on criminal justice and strategic management. His research focuses on the improvement of the criminal justice system at the local, national, and international levels through the development of performance measurement tools.

Prior to his current post, he served as director of the Vera Institute of Justice, where he focused on institutional reform of police, prosecution, and public defense services in the United States and internationally. Professor Stone also serves as chair of the Altus Global Alliance, which unites justice-sector research organizations in Russia, India, Nigeria, Chile, Brazil, and the United States. He is the author of Supporting Security, Justice and Development:

Lessons for a New Era, for the UK Department for International Development, and Crowd Control That Can Kill for Harvard's Rappaport Institute.

Professor Stone received an M.Phil. in criminology from the University of Cambridge and his JD from Yale Law School. In 2006, he received an honorary OBE from the British government for contributions to criminal justice reform in the United Kingdom.

Ex Officio Members

Keri Blackwell

Program Officer
Local Initiatives Support Corporation

Keri Blackwell serves as a program officer for LISC/Chicago's New Communities Program, working with community partners in North Lawndale, Little Village, and West Haven. Ms. Blackwell manages thematic opportunities in public safety and arts and culture across the sixteen participating communities. Prior to joining LISC/Chicago, Ms. Blackwell served as a program officer for National LISC. Ms. Blackwell has worked for LISC for eight years and holds a bachelor's degree in sociology and social welfare from the University of Wisconsin--Madison.

Jonathan Lewin

Commander
Information Services Division, Chicago Police Department

Jonathan Lewin is Commander of the Information Services Division of the Chicago Police Department. In this capacity, he manages the Department's award-winning Citizen and Law Enforcement Analysis and Reporting (CLEAR) application, the largest transaction police database in the United States. A sworn member of the Department for fourteen years, Commander Lewin oversaw implementation of the first walk-up-and-use crime-mapping application for police officers and pioneered the innovative use of technology to support CAPS (Chicago Alternative Policing Strategy), conducting numerous community workshops, demonstrations, and focus groups throughout the city to shape development of cutting-edge applications. These award-winning applications were showcased by the U.S. Department of Justice and have served as models for development in other cities.

Among his awards are two Superintendent's Awards of Merit, the Kathy Osterman Outstanding Public Service Award, the Chicagoland Chamber of Commerce Forensic Service Award, the Cook County Crimestoppers Technology in Law Enforcement Award, and the Alumni Achievement Award from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. He has authored several articles, conducted numerous Department of Justice workshops on police use of technology, and served as a consultant to the National Institute of Justice Crime Mapping Research Center.

Prior to his current appointment, he served as Commanding Officer of Continuing Education at the Education and Training Division, Coordinator of the Technology Section of the Research and Development Division, and a field lieutenant and Acting Watch Commander in some of the busiest districts in Chicago. Commander Lewin has completed training at the Northwestern University Center for Public Safety. He holds a BS in Administration of Justice from Southern Illinois University and a masters in public policy and administration from Northwestern University.

Susan Lloyd

Principal
Lloyd Consulting, Inc.

Susan Lloyd, PhD, leads Lloyd Consulting, Inc., a firm that seeks to stimulate and strengthen the capacity to solve social problems, especially problems resulting from persistent poverty and inequity. Clients include The Atlantic Philanthropies, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange Trust, CEOs for Cities, the Chicago Community Trust, the Chicago Foundation for Women, the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, and the Mertz Gilmore Foundation.

Lloyd has 25 years of experience as both funder and practitioner, most recently as a program director for the MacArthur Foundation for 13 years, where she was responsible for evaluating its domestic program and designing and managing large-scale grantmaking programs in public housing transformation, neighborhood revitalization, and research in housing and community change. She also conceived of and structured intermediary arrangements with: LISC/Chicago to operate a comprehensive community development effort in 16 city neighborhoods called the New Communities Program; the Prince Charitable Trusts and the Richard H. Driehaus Foundation to fund arts organizations; and the Chicago Community Trust to establish the Partnership for New Communities to help finance public housing transformation.

Lloyd has published on social problem-solving and was a research affiliate of the Joint Center for Poverty Research at Northwestern University and the University of Chicago. She has an MA and PhD in human development and social policy from Northwestern University.

Andrew Mooney

Senior Program Director
Local Initiatives Support Corporation

Andrew Mooney is the senior program director for the Chicago region of the Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC). Founded twenty years ago, LISC is a not-for-profit development bank that provides grants, loans, and equity—as well as technical assistance—to community organizations engaged in the revitalization of their neighborhoods.

Mr. Mooney has devoted his career to community development and, in addition to LISC, has held key leadership positions in several development organizations. He has served in various positions with the city of Chicago, most notably as executive director and then chairman of the board of the Chicago Housing Authority. Mr. Mooney was appointed president of the Greater Des Moines Chamber of Commerce, the principal economic development agency for the central Iowa region. Mr. Mooney also was a principal with the firm of CM Associates, Inc., where he provided consulting services to clients engaged in housing and economic development. In addition to his responsibilities at LISC, Mr. Mooney also recently served on the Board of Commissioners of the Chicago Housing Authority and was one of the architects of the latter's ambitious Plan for Transformation.

Mr. Mooney currently sits on the Board of Directors of ACCION/Chicago and the city of Chicago Affordable Housing Advisory Committee. Previously, he has served on the boards of the National Council for Urban Economic Development, the Council of Large Public Housing Authorities (where he was a founding member), the city of Des Moines Public Housing Commission (which he chaired), and Iowa State University's President's Council. He is a member of the Urban Land Institute and the Lambda Alpha honor society.

A native of Chicago, Mr. Mooney is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Notre Dame and the University of Chicago, where he was a Danforth Fellow.

Ellen Scrivner

Director

John Jay Leadership Academy, John Jay College of Criminal Justice

Dr. Ellen Scrivner recently left her position as Deputy Superintendent of the Bureau of Administrative Services, Chicago Police Department, to become the director of the John Jay Leadership Academy at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York City. A recognized expert on a wide range of policing issues, Dr. Scrivner has spent time both at the federal and local law enforcement levels as well as in the academic arena. While in Chicago, Dr. Scrivner oversaw all information technology initiatives and was instrumental in bringing an electronic form of community policing to the forefront (CLEARpath); launching an innovative Personnel Performance System that uses electronic spreadsheets to account for police performance; and ensuring the implementation of ICLEAR, the information sharing enterprise system designed to advance information sharing of critical police information throughout the state of Illinois. While serving as deputy director for Community Policing Development at the U.S. Department of Justice COPS Office, Dr. Scrivner oversaw an $8.8 billion grant program, launched the nationwide network of innovative community policing training institutes, and was responsible for all police integrity initiatives. She has had adjunct faculty appointments at the University of Maryland, George Mason University, and the University of Illinois (Chicago). Her publication history addresses contemporary law enforcement issues, including recruitment, hiring, training, use of force and accountability, community policing, and a range of police psychological issues. Ms. Scrivner holds a PhD in psychology from The Catholic University of America and a master's degree from St. Louis University.